Ben Davis High School's Dennis Goins finalist for 2017 Indiana Teacher of the Year

September 6, 2016

Dennis Goins, chair of the performing arts department at Ben Davis High School, is one of ten finalists for 2017 Indiana Teacher of the Year.

The Indiana Department of Education announced the names of the ten finalists on Tuesday, September 6.

Mr. Goins teaches television broadcasting to students at Ben Davis High School's Area 31 Career Center. He came to Ben Davis after a career as a television news photographer.

"I am honored to recognize ten outstanding educators who have demonstrated their commitment to high-quality instruction and service to Hoosier students," said Glenda Ritz, Indiana's superintendent of public instruction. The IDOE will announce the overall winner in October.
