

IDOE identifies seventh “Promising Practice” in MSD Wayne

September 23, 2016

To mark Indiana’s bicentennial year, the Indiana Department of Education is identifying 200 “Promising Practices” in school districts throughout the state. The IDOE has now named a seventh “Promising Practice” right here in MSD Wayne.

That practice is the creation of a new playground for kindergarten and Life Skills students at North Wayne Elementary. MSD Wayne Superintendent Jeff Butts took part in the ribbon cutting for the playground last spring. Fundraising generated more than $100,000 for the project.

Other “Promising Practices” in MSD Wayne include Stout Field Elementary’s Summeropolis program and the early-college high school model at Ben Davis University High School. Visit the IDOE’s website to view all seven “Promising Practices” here in MSD Wayne.

WE ARE WAYNE!
GREAT SCHOOLS :: GREAT COMMUNITY